That is a very suggestive anecdote which s told of some man who had subscribed to a paper and to whom the publication continued to be forwarded after his time had expired. For a while he bore the in fliction in meekness, but at last patience ceased to be a virtue and he refused to take success, for, undaunted by any such little obstacle as that, the paper still continued to put in its appearance. Then the man wrote "Refused" upon a copy and mailed it to the publishers, but, even this proved Grand Masquerade Ball is announced to take place at Wilcox Hall, and those who have the matter in th he wrote a letter mildly suggesting that endeavor to render it a success in all re- his term of subscription had expired and spects. tains a lesson that ought to be observed When a man subsbribes for any publica tion for six months or a year it is to b presumed that he knows what he is about and that if he wants it any longer he would have said so. And if, after his time is out, he does not renew, after receiving prope notice, it is equally to be presumed that he does not desire it any longer. For a publisher to continue to send his paper under as a publisher to presume that a man received to that effect, and the one would be just as justifiable as the other in asking payment for that which a person had never asked for and perhaps did not want.
